Parents and Students,

As we continue to sail through these uncharted waters of school@home, the importance of checking in and participating in school through school@home is as important as reporting to the campus every day. Each student is still required to be in school. Educational services of instruction are being provided through a non-site based instructional delivery system.

School business as usual is not as usual at the current time, but by incorporating school@home we are being able to virtually fulfill our calendar, with some expectation that we will not have to extend our year. This will hopefully allow graduation and end-of-year activities to resume, with little change, once we return to normalcy.

Although a student’s participation in their studies is not within the campus walls, laws concerning promotion and retention state that a student may be promoted only on the basis of academic achievement or demonstrated proficiency of the subject matter of the course or grade level.

Even when the class is offered through virtual means, nonattendance and not participating in virtual studies will result in failure to be promoted. A student who fails to perform satisfactorily or does not participate shall be retained at the same grade level for the next school year.

Some means of grading being incorporated shall reflect each student’s relative mastery of an assignment and ensure that a sufficient number of grades are taken to support the grade or mastery level assigned. Guidelines for grading or assigning mastery levels will be clearly communicated to students and parents.

Stay connected.
